

Board Elections 2018

Will be launched in January. In the meantime, if you would like to talk to someone about becoming a Board member, please email Philippa Glasgow on philippa.glasgow@cssc.co.uk

Anne Jackson (re-elected Board member)

WHO Having recently retired, Anne now has more time to devote to her role on the Board. Not afraid to challenge and question proposals put to the Board, Anne feels that with CSSC's centenary approaching, it's important to recognise the historic event in a way that includes and involves all members.

SKILLS Having been involved in sport throughout her life, Anne was Secretary of the Valuation Office (VO) Sports and Social Association for nearly 20 years, Secretary of the VO Golfing Society for 10 years and CSSC Ladies' National Golf organiser for 4 years. She is currently a member of the CSSC London Regional Management Board and has volunteered at all the CSSC Games except the first one.

MISSION Whilst recruitment is going well, retention continues to be the greatest challenge facing CSSC. Continually updating and changing the membership offers along with providing a good range of taster days is a way to ensure value for money for members. CSSC must continue to offer good sports opportunities despite the lack of special leave and the Civil Service needs to recognise how CSSC can help with their health and wellbeing agenda.

Vic Hibbert (new Board member)

WHO Vic Hibbert is an advocate of work/life balance and the continual improvement of all members' health and wellbeing. Vic's background and open mind enables him to challenge the status quo and seek improvement.

SKILLS A long civil service career in Benefits and HR, and experience working with staff and volunteers at the YMCA, has given Vic a greater understanding of recruitment, training and retention. As a YMCA trustee, a CSSC South West region committee member and the Director of a Community Interest Company with strategic experience, Vic is also a keen runner, in touch with active members' needs.

MISSION Vic feels that membership retention is the biggest challenge CSSC faces. Attracting new members with a backdrop of increased competition in the marketplace is another major challenge. As personal leisure time becomes increasingly important, and people seek new things to explore and expect better value, CSSC's marketing communications and its volunteer network must be continuously improved to keep pace in the changing marketplace.

Clare Logan (new Board member)

WHO Clare has always been involved in sport and is extremely passionate about living, and promoting a healthy, active lifestyle. Enthusiastic in her role as a Health and Wellbeing Specialist Dietitian at Nottingham University Hospitals (NUH), Clare supports and encourages staff to manage their weight, physical, and mental wellbeing in a highly stressful environment.

SKILLS Clare has established a dietetic service to improve NUH staff health and wellbeing, which has involved much strategic planning and building relationships with all staff groups. The programme successfully met all targets specified for an NHS England proposal. Last Summer she organised a charity ball after struggling to deal with the sudden death of her father, raising thousands for the Cruse Bereavement and NUH Charity. Clare feels that her clinical, personal and research experience endows her with the competency and confidence to provide valuable contributions to CSSC's Board.

MISSION Clare believes that encouraging people to take time out from work and life commitments to look after their wellbeing is a principal threat facing CSSC and the wider UK population. The view of the NHS to take a more preventative approach to healthcare makes understanding the importance of a healthy lifestyle fundamental for individuals, and the health service. Clare is motivated to help drive CSSC's strategic plan.

Paul Stubbs (re-elected Board member)

WHO Paul served on the Departmental Association Committee as Secretary and Chairman for 15 years. He has been Chair of the London Region for the past 3 years and on the London Management Board for 16 years, winning a Merit Award in 2009. As a member of the Resources and Investment Committees Paul will continue using his experience in these roles for the future of CSSC.

SKILLS Managing multi-million-pound budgets for the HM Courts and Tribunals Service as Senior Accountant, Paul's skills have assisted his valued contribution to both the Resources and Investment Committees. As a Trust Administrator in the Public Trust Office managing an Investment Portfolio for Beneficiaries and a secondary school Governor as chair of the Resources Committee, Paul has the experience to help ensure the financial future of CSSC.

MISSION CSSC is facing up to the challenges brought about by the loss of the Cabinet Office grant. For continued success, all income and resources must be monitored and directed appropriately for the benefit of members.
